GOOD ROADS IS TO BE A SUCCESS

Convention to Be Called in Ogden Is Receiving the Attention of the Government—Speed Regulation of Autos May Be Loosely Enforced—More Delegates Named.

It was stated this morning that during the time of the Good Roads' convention in Ogden the latter part of this week and the early part of next, speed concessions were to be made to the extent that automobiles would be permitted to drive at a high rate of speed on the streets and avenues of the city. When Judge Howell, chairman of the Good Roads' board of control, was seen regarding the report, he laughingly said that it would likely not be quite that bad, but that it was contemplated that the speedometer be given a few days' vacation. Judge Howell stated that he thought the city officials, having in hand the speed regulations of the city, are deserving of a brief outing, and that fair week would be an opportunity for the exercise of that privilege. This would give them an opportunity to visit the fair, see the races and witness the great display of blooded sheep that will be at the fair grounds.

Interest in the Good Roads' convention to be held in Ogden during the fair week is unabated, and the prospects are that the convention will be the most interesting and successful in the history of the good roads movement in the intermountain country. It is of national importance and is receiving recognition at the hands of the agricultural department of the United States, as is shown in a communication just received from National Director of Good Roads L. W. Page, which reads as follows:

Coming to Convention.
United States Department of Agriculture, Office of Public Roads, Washington, D. C., Sept. 13, 1910.
Hon. J. A. Howell, Ogden City, Utah—Dear Sir: In reply to your letter of August 23, inviting me to address the meeting of the Intermountain Good Roads association, to be held at Ogden on September 23, 24 and 26, I regret to state that it will be impossible for me to attend that meeting.

"However, I am pleased to advise you that I have assigned Mr. J. H. Dodge, superintendent of Road Construction, to represent this office at that meeting. Mr. Dodge will correspond with you in regard to the subject and time of his address. Very respectfully, (Signed) L. W. PAGE, Director."

The following additional delegates have been appointed to attend the Intermountain Good Roads convention to be held in Ogden September 23, 24 and 26, 1910:
Tosco County, Utah—Andrew Russell, Tooele, M. M. Bush, Tooele, Montana State Auto Association—John Berkin, Butte, John Cowett, Butte, C. West, Billings, W. B. George, Billings, L. Penwell, Helena, Grand County, Utah—Myron Lane, Moab, J. W. Hammond, Elgin, Juan Peterson, Moab, J. W. Williams, Moab, John E. Pace, Castleton. Appointed by Hon. J. H. Brady, Governor of Idaho—E. R. Sherman, Buhl. Total, 419.

CHINESE ON A SPECIAL TRAIN

Prince Tsai Hsun, Uncle of Emperor of China, Will Pass Through Ogden Tuesday Morning—Accompanied by Steel Magnates Who Are to Build Chinese Warships.

Prince Tsai Hsun, uncle of the emperor of China and a more distant relative of the sun, will arrive in Ogden tomorrow morning on a special Southern Pacific train and will leave over the Union Pacific for New York city. In company with the most royal queue and nail grower, will be a party of mandarins and it is believed likely that Charles Schwab, the big steel magnate, will also be aboard the special.

Mr. Schwab, with a number of other prominent steel men, passed through Ogden going west a few days ago and met Prince Tsai Hsun in San Francisco. It is thought that the prince made the trip to the United States to contract for the building of a number of battleships by the Bethlehem Steel company of which Schwab is head. In company with Schwab was H. S. Schneider, vice president of the Bethlehem Steel company. Both these steel men will most likely be aboard the prince's special.

While the royal train is ostensibly bound for New York city, it will no doubt stop in Pittsburgh, where the main offices of the steel corporation are situated.

The special is made up of one Pullman composite car, five compartment sleepers and one private car for the prince's personal use. A diner will be attached to the special at this point.

Captain Wilford Fairfax, continental soldier, an officer in Light Horse Harry Lee's Legion of Washington's army, camped near Valley Forge, a native of Virginia.

Lord Henry Carlton, a Tory in King George's army; also a native of Virginia. Jack Christie, Colonel Herman Schiller von Voltz, a Hessian officer stationed at Trenton.

Dr. Obadiah Willard, John C. Thomas, a patriot. Seldy Roach, Captain Autree, a British officer on duty with the Hessian troops.

Sergeant Hanby, a regular. Tabitha Westbrook, familiarly called "Tabby," aunt to Virginia.

Miss Pearl Snyder, Virginia Preston, mistress of Preston Manor, formerly of Virginia, her father in King George's army, stationed at Philadelphia.

Miss Ala Daniels.

"At Valley Forge," the first offering of the week's repertoire engagement of the Salt Lake Colonial players at the Ogden theater, was presented to a fair audience last evening.

The play is a stirring drama of the Revolutionary war times, and the scene of the play centers about Trenton, N. J.

The offering was received enthusiastically by the audience, and the efforts of the players given much praise. The cast contained but seven characters, but each and every one was played in an admirable manner.

The work of Mr. Jack Christie in the role of the military gentleman villain, Lord Henry Carlton, a major in King George's army, should probably be mentioned as the best bit of genuine acting in the play. Mr. Christie handled his part in an exceptionally fine manner, controlling each situation as his part does. He maintained his mastery of every phase of his difficult role.

The part of the "hero," Captain Wilford Fairfax of the Continental army, was in the hands of Mr. E. R. Taylor. The part is a small one and requires not much effort, excepting the graceful handling of an officer's sword, but Mr. Taylor made the most of it. His personality and attractive smile immediately won his audience, and his success in the suit (the hand of Virginia was very easy to understand).

Miss Ala Daniels had the role of the leading lady, Virginia Preston, the daughter of the Tory officer. Her part required much talent, but Miss Daniels possesses more than enough to meet the requirements. Her appearance was quite pleasing, and was considerably added to by the quaint style of dress in those days.

The comedy was furnished by Mr. Seldy Roach, who took two parts. His first was that of Dr. Obadiah Willard, a confirmed patriot, who sought the hand of the one aged maiden, Tabitha Westbrook. His interpretation of the intoxicated Hessian officer brought down the house.

Mr. Roach is well known in Ogden, having played for years with the old Moore stock company when that company held sway at the old Utahna. He was greeted with a flattering welcome by the audience, for his efforts of years ago at amusing the theatergoers of Ogden has not been forgotten.

Miss Pearl Snyder as Aunt Tabby handled her part quite well. Her light comedy with the venerable doctor furnished no end of mirth.

Miss Snyder is an Ogdenite. She is the daughter of H. T. Snyder, formerly jailor in the local police station.

Miss Snyder was once a teacher of elocution in this city and has scores of friends who wish her well in her chosen profession.

She played the part of an elderly maid last evening, and she did it well, but she looked more like a younger lady dressed in her grandma's wedding gown.

Tonight the same company will play the comedy, "The Idler," and it is expected that the house will be large one than last night, which was greatly reduced by the opposition in the opening of the Orpheum week.

W. A. K.

AT THE ORPHEUM.

The capacity of the Orpheum theater was taxed to its utmost last night, but the house was being sold. The bill which opened for the present week is head and hands over the one of last week. The bill is brimful of clean comedy and the auditor needs no abnormal knowledge bump in order to laugh at the right time.

The most vinegar-tongued pessimist could not keep his face straight during "Mag Hagerty's Reception," a three character comedy by the Thomas J. Ryan-Richfield Co. This is the head-liner of the program. Mr. Ryan depicts an Irish hodge-podge which some freak wave of fortune has tossed upon the golden shores of Fifth avenue. His daughter has eliminated the brogue and has a hysterical hankering for "society," spelled with a capital S. The act opens with Hagerty returning from his first automobile ride. In his Irish role, Ryan is a scream. He does not have to wear a green vest and swing a shillelagh to let the audience know that he is impersonating a Celt rather than a Teuton.

He is spontaneously Irish. And this is what worries his daughter Mag and her society bug. She endeavors to veneer over his shanty Irish mannerisms with enough proper macho culture so that he can "get by" at a dress suit reception or an afternoon whist party.

There is comedy both in the action and words of the act—Ryan is clever, really clever, and so is May in a milder sort of way. Phineas Fanning, the butler, also adds something to the comedy of the act.

Because of the failure of Mr. and Mrs. Jack McGreevy to make train connections at Denver, the Ryan company presented a sequel act entitled "Mag Hagerty's Daughter," which was equally as good as their regular number. The McGreevys will be here tonight in an act called the Village Fiddler.

The program opens with a musical number by the Mullin trio. Marginal Mullin is a saxophone soloist and has played with Gilmore's and Libera's bands. His two daughters assist him in vaudeville work and the act which he presents is a good one.

Miss Suzanne Rocamora is second on the bill and despite her name, sings well. She is a very energetic vocal soloist who sings with the high notes in a soul thrilling manner. The audience enjoyed her efforts.

Mr. Bernard Granville and Mr. William Rogers, two odd fellows, are riotously funny. No two-act man, woman or child can resist their comedy. They deserve applause and they get it.

Samaroff and Sonia, the Russian peasants, present a unique act in pantomime which is pleasing. Everybody seemed to enjoy it. The act is well-dressed and different from anything seen at the Orpheum this season.

GOOD SYSTEM AND GOOD TEACHERS

The Ogden Business College has adopted Stillwell's Bookkeeping and Gregg shorthand in both day and night school. These systems, taught by the best of instructors, are giving good results. As evidence of the popularity of the school, our school enrollment is rapidly increasing. If you are interested in education, why not investigate? We honestly believe that we have a good school, and would like to prove it to you.

WILLIAM PUGH, President.

KILLED BY A FREIGHT ENGINE

J. A. Sherbeck, a Southern Pacific brakeman, was almost instantly killed Saturday afternoon at West Weir, Nev., when he lost his footing in an attempt to board the front end of a freight locomotive. Sherbeck resided at Imlay, Nev.

Sherbeck had run ahead of his train and when the locomotive approached he attempted to jump on the pilot step. He missed the step and was thrown across the tracks. Both legs were crushed and his body frightfully mutilated. He died thirty minutes after the accident.

While the unfortunate man made his home at Imlay, it is believed that his family resides in Portland, Ore. Word was sent by railroad officials to Portland and it is likely that the remains will be shipped to that city for burial.

HEIKE SENT TO PRISON

He Must Serve Eight Months for Sugar Frauds

New York, Sept. 18.—Charles R. Heike, former secretary and treasurer of the American Sugar Refining company, who has been called the "man higher up" in the sugar trust, was sentenced today by Judge Martin in the United States court to serve eight months in the New York penitentiary on Blackwell's Island and pay a fine of $5,000 on conviction of conspiring to defraud the United States government by the underweighing of sugar.

In imposing sentence, Judge Martin said that as Heike had only been sentenced on one count of the indictment charging him with aiding the conspiracy instead of all six counts, as the other defendants had been, and taking Heike's age (66 years) and his accustomed mode of life into consideration, he would be inclined to suspend sentence altogether. But as punishment must be inflicted as an example, he could not follow his personal inclination, Judge Martin added, and he therefore added the eight months' prison sentence to the $5,000 fine.

Judge Martin granted a stay of execution pending an appeal to the circuit court of appeals. The court also reduced Heike's bail, which had been $25,000 pending sentence, to $15,000.

Heike's sentence is the culminating point in the federal government's prosecutions of American Sugar Refining company's officials and employees growing out of the extended underweighing frauds on the Williamsburg docks of the trust, brought to light by Richard Parr's famous raid on the docks in 1907. Four weighers for the company, and Oliver Splitzer, their dock boss, were convicted in the first criminal trial in connection with the frauds, and the weighers are still serving their sentence of one year in the Blackwell's Island penitentiary.

Splitzer, who was sentenced to two years in the Atlanta penitentiary, was pardoned during the trial of Heike, Ernest W. Gerbracht, the refinery superintendent, and four minor employees of the company for conspiracy. He turned state evidence and his testimony played an important part in the conviction of Heike, Gerbracht and the checkers.

The sugar company, meanwhile, had paid the government more than $2,000,000, out of which it was shown the customs had been defrauded by the underweighing operations.

Heike's case was a long time coming to trial, as he first claimed immunity because of the testimony which he had given before the federal grand jury in another sugar proceeding. His plea, however, was overruled by the supreme court of the United States.

Gerbracht was sentenced to two years in the Atlanta penitentiary and

NO DISEASE ON WASATCH GROUNDS

Members of the Wasatch Duck club, becoming interested in the duck question because of the talk over the country regarding the epidemic that appears to prevail with the duck family, visited the grounds yesterday.

The state today that they found a number of ducks at the grounds that were somewhat emaciated and were not able to follow others of the feathery kind in their flight away from the hunter, but that the present age was very slight, there being not more than a half dozen in a hundred birds. There were also some geese that appeared to be in the same condition.

Deputy County Clerk Larson stated today that they encountered a flock of geese of about 250, among them being only two unable to arise from the water. One of these was captured by the dogs and brought to shore, and it seemed to be suffering of starvation more than anything else.

The general opinion of those who were in the party is that the ducks at the Wasatch grounds this year will not be afflicted, and that, generally speaking, the ducks are in fairly good condition.
